

electrified the electric tunnel pdf

The "Electric Spine" was the name for part of a, now largely cancelled, rolling programme of railway electrification projects in England initially estimated to cost Â£800 million, but later thought to cost close to Â£3 billion. The aim was to form 25 kV AC overhead-wire electrified links northward from the Port of Southampton to major cities in ...

Electric Spine - Wikipedia

station) (Original opened 1901 Deviation 19?? opened Deviation Deviations opened 1950s & late 1950s Natal Railway Company "100 yards short of a mile" Gauge: 1435mm (4ft 8.5in)

